

POSH SURROUNDINGS

Attractive scatter cushions and matching soft furnishings are just superficial and do not make up for poor care.

An en-suite bathroom may be nice to have, but the quality of care is paramount.

Do not be overwhelmed by cinemas, libraries, salt caves and gyms, the residents may not even get to use them.

And they probably won't spend much time in their own room, aside from when they're in bed.

Look carefully at where they will spend most of their time: the main lounge and the dining room, if they have one.

How long do residents sit in the same chairs? Is there room for everyone? Are they eating meals in their chairs?
